CRIMINAL NUMBER 17-295

DEFENDANT'S SENTENCING MEMORANDUM

Jorge Rosiles-Arreola files this memorandum in aid of mitigation at sentencing. The Presentence Investigation Report prepared by United States Probation Officer Loris Shehata concludes the advisory range is 0-6 months based on a total offense level 6, Criminal History Category I. Given the particular facts and circumstances of this case, the defense suggests that a sentence of time served would best fulfill sentencing goals pursuant to United States v. Booker, 543 U.S. 220 (2005) and the subsequent cases reaffirming its holding, and 18 U.S.C. §3553(a).

I. PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On May 31, 2017, the United States Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania filed an indictment charging Mr. Rosiles-Arreola with one count of Illegal Reentry in violation of 8 U.S.C. § 1326(a). Mr. Rosiles-Arreola entered a guilty plea to the indictment on June 22, 2017. Sentencing is scheduled for July 25, 2017.

II. MR. ROSILES-ARREOLA'S PERSONAL HISTORY

Mr. Rosiles-Arreola's personal history is briefly summarized in the pre-sentence report. He had a life which is similar to most people who stand before this Court awaiting sentencing for this offense. He grew up in poverty and had to drop out of school to begin working. He made the decision to come to this country and leave his family behind in order to improve his earning capacity and better provide for his family. He immediately began working and consistently maintained employment during the time he was in this country. In fact, he was stopped and arrested on these charges when he was on his way to work. Mr. Rosiles-Arreola has a wife and children in Reading, Pennsylvania, as well as an ex-wife and children in Chicago, all of whom are American citizens. He has family in Mexico to help support him when he is deported; he and his family in this country are aware that he may not return.

As is common among undocumented aliens, especially those from Mexico, his efforts to cross the border resulted in several contacts with Border Control Agents. Also common, is the multiple voluntary departures following these encounters. There is no question that this practice is employed due to the volume of people crossing the border without permission. By that same token, there can be no question that this practice does little, if anything, to discourage border crossings. Even when Border Control Agents increased their deterrence efforts by formally deporting Mr. Rosiles-Arreola, the administrative process was nothing compared to the present criminal prosecution.

His motivation for re-entering was only to work to support his family. Even now, as he remains in custody, he is faced with the added stress of hearing how his incarceration is affecting his children's standard of living. As a result of this, he is firmly resolute to never return to this country. He realizes that he cannot return to this country without risking re-arrest and additional criminal penalties. Bearing in mind that he has never been arrested and not been in custody as long as he has been prior to now, this experience has impacted him deeply and has served the deterrent effect that his prior contacts with Border Patrol agents did not achieve. Additionally, he knows that the current political climate supports the implementation of harsher penalties for aliens with histories of prior convictions and deportations, such as him. This further reinforces the need for him to refrain from reentering the United States.

III. APPLICATION OF THE STATUTORY FACTORS TO THIS CASE

The Court must consider all of the factors identified in 18 U.S.C. §3553(a) and impose a sentence that is “sufficient, but not greater than necessary” to satisfy the purposes of sentencing. 18 U.S.C. §3553(a)(1).

A. The Nature and Circumstances of the Offense and History and Characteristics of Mr. Rosiles-Arreola

Mr. Rosiles-Arreola’s work history and his motive for the commission of the instant offense, all weigh in favor of a sentence of time served.

B. The Need for the Sentence Imposed to Promote Certain Statutory Objectives

- 1. To reflect the seriousness of the offense, promote respect for the law, and provide just punishment for the offense.*

Mr. Rosiles-Arreola’s period of incarceration is especially difficult given his inability to help his family. The guidelines generally account for harm, but not at all for the motive for committing the offense, which is highly relevant. Mr. Rosiles-Arreola understands that he should not have returned to the United States and is acutely aware of the potential for additional punishment in this and future cases. A sentence of time served would not promote a lack of respect for the law as Mr. Rosiles-Arreola is presently incarcerated and will remain in custody at a minimum until deportation.

As the Court is aware, deportations are not immediate and Mr. Rosiles-Arreola is likely to be incarcerated beyond whatever sentence this Court imposes. A time served sentence represents a within guideline range sentence. Sentences within the guideline range are relatively common for many similarly compelling reasons and do not undermine respect for the law.

2. To afford adequate deterrence to criminal conduct.

A sentence above time served is neither warranted nor necessary to further deter Mr. Rosiles-Arreola from returning. He understands what he would likely face if he returns in the future, which is unfathomable to him given his present guideline range. Mr. Rosiles-Arreola has been incarcerated since May 3, 2017. Mr. Rosiles-Arreola is very much aware of the significant period of incarceration he faces both now and in the future should he return again. Moreover, the fact that Mr. Rosiles-Arreola was prosecuted for this offense, in lieu of immediate deportation, should serve as sufficient deterrence.

3. To protect the public from further crimes of the defendant.

Mr. Rosiles-Arreola poses no threat to the public. He will be returned to immigration custody for deportation upon completion of his sentence. Protection of the public is of diminished concern in this case.

C. Kinds of Sentences Available

The range of sentences statutorily available to the Court, including the advisory guidelines range, are listed in Part D of the PSR. Based upon a total offense level of 6 and a criminal history category of I, the guideline imprisonment range is zero to six months; since the range is in Zone A of the Sentencing Table, a sentence of imprisonment is not required. Further, the range includes a sentence of incarceration of up to two years, not more than 1 year of supervised release, and a fine of up to $250,000. Section 5D1.1(c) discourages the Court from imposing a period of supervised release. It reads as follows: The court ordinarily should not impose a term of supervised release in a case in which supervised release is not required by statute and the defendant is a deportable alien who likely will be deported after imprisonment.

IV. CONCLUSION

Based on the above reasons, the defense respectfully requests the Court impose a sentence of time served.

Respectfully submitted,
